I. Statement of Joint Objectives

A. Purpose. This Challenge Cost Share Assistance Agreement (AA) is made and entered into by the United States Department of the Interior (USDI), Bureau of Land Management (BLM), Oregon State Office, and Wolfree Inc., (Wolfree), a non-profit corporation, for the purpose of developing a program of science-based natural resource education at the Cascade Streamwatch (CSW) facilities located at the BLM Wildwood Recreation Site along the Wild and Scenic, Salmon River near Welches, Oregon, as well as other locations suitable for program application; and the continuation of guided and structured science-based resource education programs, curriculum development, teacher in-service training, nature mapping training and other interpretive and special event activities.

B. Objective. This agreement specifically addresses the planning and implementation of the education program for school-aged children by the BLM, Forest Service and Wolfree, dedicated to providing exceptional science-based learning experiences in the ecological sciences. Wolfree desires to make Cascade Streamwatch a central focus of its educational program, and is committing a share of its resources (staff, funds, office space, and equipment) to match public funds with private funds to fully implement the CSW education program. Wolfree has the capability and the interest, and is prepared to take the lead, in planning and implementing the program. In addition, volunteer facilitators and program instructors have been recruited from a diverse group of resource professionals and individuals, including the Northwest Service Academy, US Geological Survey, US Fish & Wildlife Service, BLM, Forest Service, various state agencies and the City of Portland Water Bureau and Parks Department.

Successful implementation of this science-based educational program helps meet the goals of both the BLM and Wolfree. Wolfree's stated goals are to promote understanding of scientific and ecological principles in young people, specifically by instilling:

- *A deeper understanding of the science of ecology;
- *Enhanced science skills necessary to solve complex problems;
- *A stronger desire to think creatively and critically;
- *A greater respect for themselves and their environment.

BLM direction and communication from the agency's Director have emphasized the use of its highly trained resource professional workforce to inform the public about ecosystem and watershed management issues and conservation. This partnership supports this direction by providing programs and materials to educate students and others about water, fish and other aquatic resources and promoting their stewardship.

C. Authorities.

1. Federal Land Policy and Management Act of 1976 (FLPMA) (P.L. 94-579)
2. 1991 Appropriations Act, P.L. 101-512, which provides challenge cost share authority.
3. Take Pride in America Program, 16 U.S.C. 4601.

D. Benefits. Neither the BLM or Wolfree possess all the technical expertise, finances or other resources to fully implement the education program independently. The BLM does not have staff or capability to efficiently establish and coordinate the program. The BLM can provide access to facilities as well as some support for materials, equipment and staff in addition to biological and resource expertise. Wolfree can provide educational program coordination and management, technical skills related to development and delivery of science education and media, and the ability to conduct independent fund raising and oversight of program financial management but lacks sufficient funding. Both organizations benefit by the synergy created to produce a more effective, meaningful and cost effective education program.
